

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A charge pump device for supplying a step-up voltage to a host, includes: a charge pump part constructed with first to nth unit charge pumps, and a multi-level detector for detecting a level of a step-up voltage to selectively drive the unit charge pumps in accordance with an amount of power consumption of the host and thereby outputting at least one level detection signal.